Local News Briefs

Hurricane Irene's slow stroll up the coast caused flooding, downed trees, and power outages throughout the Five County area. Residents of Rocky Mount, Wilson, Nashville, Zebulon, and throughout the area continue clean-up.

The Good News... Enjoy Cooler Temperatures

It is early in September, with cool evenings and morning and less heat during the day. All through the month, including the Labor Day Weekend, local outdoor activities provide opportunity for fresh air and gentle days.

While the spiders still spin their webs as the sun drops, biting bugs are becoming more scarce. Now is a great time of year to enjoy your sweet tea or evening coffee outdoors. Or, better yet, pull out a telescope or binoculars and enjoy that clear Carolina sky while you relax in the evening breeze.

The Bad News... Shaken

It was Tuesday, August 23rd just before 2:00pm. Do you remember where you were? Did you feel the earthquake as it rippled from Virginia down through North Carolina?

The earthquake started in Mineral VA and waded throughout the Eastern US. Luckily the quake caused little damage locally, though many who had not felt a quake before — and didn't expect one in North Carolina — may have been a bit unnerved by the experience.

A Little Local History

Devil Dog Dungarees

Passing through Zebulon on Gannon Avenue, you might see the large, retro sign for Devil Dog Dungarees along the road. The sign is a reminder of North Carolina's textile industry history and of manufacturing in Zebulon.

The Devil Dog Dungarees factory opened around 1954. The family-owned business had started in New York, and moved to NC to open sewing factories in Zebulon and other towns. Changes in the textile industry at that time prompted many companies to move to the state and business was booming.

Devil Dog Dungarees — actually Devil Dog Manufacturing Co. — has operated continuously in Zebulon since 1954, registering with the state in 1952. In its prime, the company employed as many as 1,200 in NC.

In the late 1990s, changes to the textile and apparel industry came again. Jobs sewing apparel began moving to other parts of the world. Riding through the industry changes while the apparel industry disappeared in the US, Devil Dog continues today.

Originally a sewing facility, Devil Dog's Zebulon plant currently serves as a distribution center for apparel they make elsewhere and distributes to department stores. The Gannon location employs approximately 95 people today.

Said Tony Shannahan, a 32-year employee still with the company, "We are quite proud of the fact we're still here. A lot of companies did not survive that period of time."

Over the years, local residents not only worked at the plant, they were able to purchase apparel via the Devil Dog outlet store. Business adjustments led to closing the outlet two years ago this Fall. While the sewing and jeans may be a thing of the past, the distribution company and its unique "dungarees" sign continue to be a part of Zebulon today.

Shades of Grey

What Do You Think?

Some situations are viewed in black and white; right and wrong. Yet, many people think situations also have a grey area where solutions are not so easily discerned. This is not just about the choices people make, but the thought process they go through to arrive at their decisions.

Submitted for Your Consideration and Conversation

You and your sister are quite close. You've been pals through childhood, adulthood, married life, and parenthood. She is very dependable and you trust her so much that you and your husband named her as your children's guardian in your will.

You've always found your sister to be logical, and a good person to bounce ideas off of when you aren't sure what to do. The last thing you would expect is for her to do something out of the ordinary.

Then one evening, your phone rings as you are heading off to bed. It is your sister, breathless, and she says she has just seen an unidentified flying object hovering over their house.

She goes into long detail of how the craft hovered over their house, making no noise, and shining a bright purple light on her for several minutes. She tells you she couldn't move while it scanned her, and that she yelled for her husband when the light went off and the craft rose into the sky.

You are shocked, as you never really believed in UFOs and aliens from other planets. You can't think of anything to say when she asks, "Can you believe it?"

After listening to her excited story a little longer, you tell her you will come see her the next day after work and end the phone call.

The following evening, you stop by and she is still in the same, excited state. She tells you the story again, wide-eyed and sincerely. Mostly you listen, not sure what to ask or what you think of the event.

While you haven't believed any UFO sighting reports before, you see that she truly believes that what she saw has no other explanation. She gives you many reasons why the craft could not be a helicopter, toy, airplane, or balloon.

When she goes into the kitchen for coffee, you talk with her husband and ask him what he saw. He tells you that he only saw something move in the sky, but from what he saw "it could have been a UFO, or just an ordinary helicopter or something." He isn't sure what to think of his wife's exuberance, but feels it's best to not burst her bubble since he can't say for sure what he saw.

You support your sister as best you can, even though you are skeptical of what really happened to her the night before. Being careful of her feelings, you chat with her a little longer and then go home.

Two days later, your sister calls to say that the local news is coming out to talk with her about the UFO. She will be on the 11pm news telling her story! Her hope, she says, is that someone will see the news and maybe come forward with photos or video of the craft.

Now you're at a crossroads. Do you support your sister and assume that — with her logical mind — she must have seen something unusual? Or, do you think you should caution her about going public to avoid being judged by neighbors? Do you think you'd ever trust her to baby-sit your kids again? Or, do you think you'd start to believe in UFOs?

News From The Grey Area

Word of the Issue

Memorial

Definition: Something that serves to preserve a memory, often of an event or person.

Example: "The 9/11 memorial was unveiled in front of a large crowd."

Translation of the Issue

English — "memory"

German — speicher Spanish — memoria

Italian — memoria Irish — cuimhne

Latin — memoriae Dutch — geheugen

Translations for these and many other languages may be found at translate.google.com, babelfish.yahoo.com, and other online and print resources.

Quote of the Issue

Edwin Way Teale (American Naturalist)

"For man, autumn is a time of harvest, of gathering together. For nature, it is a time of sowing, of scattering abroad."

Chuckle of the Issue

A man is walking away from the lake carrying two fish in a bucket. He is approached by a game warden who asks to see his fishing license.

The fisherman says to the game warden, "I didn't catch these fish. They are my pets. Every day I come down to the water, whistle, and these fish jump out. I take them around to see the sights, then whistle and they jump back in the bucket and we go home at the end of the day."

The game warden, not believing him, says again that it is illegal to fish without a license. The fisherman looks at the warden and says, "If you don't believe me then watch!" He turns back to the lake and throws the fish into the water.

The warden says, "Now whistle to your fish and show me that they will come out of the water."

The fisherman turns to the warden and says, "What fish?"

Something to Clip for Your 'Fridge

Local agencies, news services, and national government agencies all provide emergency preparedness lists. In case of emergency, certain supplies on-hand make the situation more safe and comfortable. While the list below is not exhaustive, it contains helpful items to keep in your house at all times — or actions to take when a storm is coming.

Emergency Preparedness

ITEMS TO BUY:

- Water (bottled for drinking)
- Canned Food (a variety of vegetables, fruits, meats, etc. you like)
- Pet Food (as appropriate)
- First Aid Kit (with pain relievers, bandages, antiseptic, ointments, and over-the-counter medicines you normally use)
- Prescription Drugs (at least a week's worth)
- Handy Tools for Repairs (knife, duct tape, etc.)
- Soap, Toothpaste, Toilet Paper, and other Hygiene Products
- Radio (with batteries or hand crank)
- Clean Clothing (plus coats, rain wear, or blankets as needed)
- Protection (as appropriate)
- Cooler (fill with ice before storm or event)

THINGS TO DO BEFORE STORM OR EVENT:

- Fill cars with gas in advance.
- Fill tub with emergency water in case water stops running.
- Know where birth certificates, passports, and other important materials may be quickly gathered in an evacuation.
- Load animal crates or leashes into car as appropriate.
- Be prepared to load items from above list into vehicle if leaving.
