Rocky Mount Downtown Renovation Progress

There is a new look in Rocky Mount and it’s right downtown. After years of planning and months of blocked streets, the first phases of the Downtown Streetscape Project are almost complete — with new brick sidewalks, fresh pavement, old-school street lamps it is just about ready for the upcoming holiday season. Parking adjustment from angled to parallel allows for on-street parking next to the widened pedestrian sidewalks.

Dozens of businesses have weathered the storm of closed streets, broken pavement, loud noises, and most of all slowed commerce. This Fall, take a drive down Main Street and see what you’re missing.

The updated downtown holds a variety of attractions: furniture stores, a newly restored theater, eateries, antique stores, and an arts center — all accessible within a few minutes’ walk around downtown.

Says business owner and resident Hilarie Vetere, “The Arts are alive and well in downtown Rocky Mount, and will play a factor in the continued renovation.”

Local Singer Opens for R&B Legend

When Al Green took the stage September 19th at the Durham Performing Arts Center (DPAC), local singer Josephine Gore had just finished amazing the audience with her voice as one half of the Jo Gore Duo.

Jo’s interest in early gospel rock-and-rollers and soul singers like Aretha Franklin and Al Green, and hard work along the way, led her to this point of opening for one of her idols.

From her childhood singing at Spring Hill Baptist (Columbus County), to teaming with local band The Alternative, through formation of the Jo Gore Duo with Bo Lankenau, Jo has performed hundreds of times and developed a voice and style fitting to her DPAC performance.

Source: Jo Gore & The Alternative

With her Herstory album recently released, this local talent is working her way into the big time! Her roots still hold strongly to NC. One of her requested song’s lyrics are all about her girlhood home, including:

*Going to Columbus County
I said, let’s have a good time at the church’s fish fry
Have a glass of sweet iced tea.*

Says Ms. Gore, “It’s no secret that I have tried to pattern myself after Sarah Vaughan. She had such an amazing vocal range and such beautiful vibrato. I worship this woman.”

The other half of the Jo Gore Duo, Bo Lankenau, is a self-taught musician from NY inspired by some of the same classic blues and soul that inspired Jo.

“I met Jo through a mutual friend and was immediately drawn to her eclectic jazz/soul/gospel stylings and deep understanding of the jazz tradition,” Lankenau said.

In addition to performing at DPAC, Jo has performed in Wendell at the Men Who Cook With Jazz Festival this past summer, and at Norris Creek during the Spring Grow And Share Music Festival.

To hear Ms. Gore and learn more about her upcoming local performances, visit www.jogore.com. Listen to the song Columbus County and enjoy this hometown girl’s talent!

National School Lunch Week

School lunch choices and nutrition are on the tip of many tongues these days. Obesity and health issues are big topics of discussion, with many looking to children’s eating habits for a long-term solution to growing US health issues.

October 15th through 19th is National School Lunch Week, a time for schools to recognize accomplishments they have made in improving nutrition. It is also a time for reviewing changes being planned and to talk with parents about the importance of healthy eating.

Many schools open their doors to parents to join their children at lunchtime. For parents whose schedules allow, National School Lunch Week is a good time to stop in, check out what the children are eating, learn about local food and gardening projects, and find out what the school is doing to improve nutrition and health.

License Granted for Wilmington Uranium Enrichment Plant

First-of-a-Kind Facility Licensed by NRC to Make Laser Enrichment of Uranium a Reality

On September 25, GE Hitachi Nuclear Energy’s (GEH) Global Laser Enrichment (GLE) announced receipt of its license from the US Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) to build a ground-breaking laser enrichment facility on the 1,600-acre site of the company’s global headquarters in Wilmington.

The license enables GLE to build a first-of-its-kind uranium enrichment facility using lasers conceived of by Australian technology company SILEX and developed by GLE experts. The company has worked with the NRC, the US Departments of State and Energy and independent non-proliferation experts for several years to ensure the security of this technology.

“Receiving our NRC license is a tremendous accomplishment and strong testament to everyone involved in this project,” said Chris Monetta, president and CEO of Global Laser Enrichment. “The technology we’ve developed could be one of the keys to the nation’s long-term energy security. At a minimum, it could provide a steady supply of uranium enriched right here in the U.S. to the country’s nuclear reactors.”

The next step in the process is for the company to make a commercialization decision. This decision will be based on several factors.

Shades of Grey

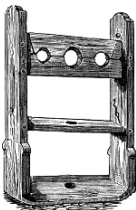

Some situations are viewed in black and white; right and wrong. Yet, many people think situations also have a grey area where solutions are not so easily discerned. This is not just about the choices people make, but the thought process they go through to arrive at their decisions.

Submitted for Your Discussion & Consideration

Recently, a NC person walked their dog in front of a public building, and then walked away without cleaning up the dog’s mess.

The reaction of the folks who work there was to post a photo of the person and their dog on their official Facebook page.

This type of “public shaming” is not a new concept. Back to the beginnings of America examples may be found. The pillory in the middle of town may be gone, and parents hanging signs on their children to shame them raises eyebrows, but with technologies like the World Wide Web and social media, the shaming can easily be done and reaches far.

Source: Bygone Punishments By William Andrews

What do you think of posting embarrassing photos online to shame someone? Do you think it makes a difference if posted on an official municipal service or government page? If you saw a photo of someone you knew online being shamed, would you blame the person or feel embarrassed for them? How do you feel about this type of “punishment”?

The Strange-ness

An Idaho fisherman caught more than he bargained for when he landed a trout. As he was cleaning the fish, he found a human finger in its belly. Detectives were able to trace the finger to its owner, who was a local man who had lost several fingers in a wakeboarding accident two weeks prior.
