Kroger-Harris Teeter Merger

Harris Teeter was welcomed into the Kroger family of companies on a recent conference call organized by Kroger. Kroger chief financial officer Mike Schlotman gave an overview of the merger during the call, which is available on the Kroger website for replay.

Mr. Schlotman touted Harris Teeter’s positive company culture and values, which are consistent with Kroger’s, as part of the company’s reason for the merger. He also stated that Kroger expects the addition of Harris Teeter will enhance The Kroger Co. “top and bottom line”, by sharing the best of what each brand has to offer. He also praised Harris Teeter’s strong management team, saying that many of the team members will continue on after the merger.

The merger helps Kroger reach into regions where Harris Teeter is already established. This includes new and growing areas such as Charlotte and Washington DC. There is minor overlap in Raleigh NC and two other cities, and Kroger will be determining how to best operate the stores.

The Harris Teeter online click-and-collect system was mentioned as of great interest to Kroger. Teams from both organization will be developing work plans for this system.

Officially there are no plan to close stores; however it was mentioned that the Federal Trade Commission filing is not submitted, and operation decisions are yet to be made.

It was also mentioned on the conference call that the deal is being financed with debt, including $100M debt of Harris Teeter. Kroger has a Bridge loan in place to fund the transaction.

More details are available online at www.thekrogerco.com in the “News Room”.

Shades of Grey

Some situations are viewed in black and white; right and wrong. Yet, many people think situations also have a grey area where solutions are not so easily discerned. This is not just about the choices people make, but the thought process they go through to arrive at their decisions.

Submitted for Your Discussion & Consideration

Your aunt calls you and is very upset. Her grandson is in his twenties and requires special care. She visited him recently, and speaking with her daughter found out that the grandson had been forgotten on the facility’s bus overnight.

Your aunt is beside herself about this incident! She wants your advice on what she should do to ensure her grandson’s safety, and that the facility can’t make this mistake with someone else.

Do you think this is something you would feel comfortable helping her with? Would would be more likely to help if you were close to your cousin, her daughter?

How do you feel about the incident in general? Do you think “those things happen” or “things like that should never happen”?

Back To School Time is Almost Here!

School shopping is just a few weeks away. The sales tax holiday is August 2-4 this year. Take advantage of this option while it is still offered, as 2013 may be the last year. Legislation is being written this month that may repeal it.

During the August 2-4 sales tax holiday, NC shoppers may purchase clothing and shoes (priced under $100/item), school supplies (priced under $100/item), some textbooks, computers and computer supplies, and sports equipment (priced under $50/item). Some everyday items such as diapers, for babies and adults, are also exempt from sales tax.

If in doubt about purchases and whether they are exempt from sales tax, the NC Department of Revenue website offers a list: www.dornc.com.

The Strange-ness

Mysterious Activity in Great Smoky Mountains National Park near Cherokee
A deep crack was discovered July 12th slicing a Blue Ridge Parkway road in two. The feet-deep fissure, caused by weather, led to the road’s closure. This road closure northeast of Asheville is not the only road closure in Western NC. A road closed in Great Smoky Mountains National Park (GSMNP) has a strange cause.
Sixty miles to the West near Cherokee, repeated road closures brought with them mysterious sounds, sickening residues, and heavy vehicle and air traffic.

According to the NC-based group online at www.skyshipovercashiers.com, strange things began happening following the closing of GSMNP public roads. Beyond the barricades, residents began reporting loud booming and grinding noises.
Several residents who traveled into the park on foot and by ATV were turned away by armed men. One person who walked through the woods to take photos of the Great Smoky Mountains “Masonic Monument” began feeling nauseous, and shortly after heard loud booming noises. No construction has been seen, despite the noise above and from under the ground.

In addition to a sensation of sickness, some residents have found odd residues on their property following an airplane fly-over. It is unknown what “crop dust” or defoliant would be used in these forest-and-residential areas. More than a few residents developed respiratory illnesses following the residue’s discovery.
Several residents and visitors to the park reported unexplained heavy equipment movements and aircraft fly-overs. The equipment included trailers hauling odd structures. The fly-overs included large military aircraft used for containers drops and “crop dusting” aircraft. These activities are near Balsam Mountain.

To read eyewitness reports or share your own experience at GSMNP, visit the website www.skyshipovercashiers.com. As they gather more facts and details on these strange activities on public lands, the information will be shared through that site.

Weeding, Eating & Fun

Trinity Bazemore, Tyanna Scarboro, Breanna Williams, and Janiah Russell wrote an update on the Zebulon Boys & Girls Club’s garden in the July 5th issue of The Grey Area. For this issue, the Garden Club photos show some of their recent gardening activities. These kids work hard to maintain the garden. They do the weeding, planting, and harvesting. They also help work the soil as compost or aged horse manure is added from time-to-time.

Movie Review of the Issue

By Kay Whatley, Editor

This issue we review World War Z. As the “Z” implies, this is a movie with zombies. Many, many zombies. World War Z is based on the 2006 novel by Max Brooks. The film story line is more than just killing the undead, as it includes a mysterious virus, government reactions across the globe, adversity, hope, and heroism.

World War Z is a British-American production covering events happening all over the world, though the film starts with the US. Brad Pitt plays the main role, former UN investigator Gerry Lane, who along with his wife and children gets caught up in the breakdown of society.

Gerry is sent on a “no choice” mission by the UN to find the original “Patient Zero” of the disease. If he does not come back to work for the UN and help them find the virus’ source, they will abandoned him and his family.

One thing I’d like to say about this movie is that I found the action unpredictable. Many times I’ve sat down to watch a movie and easily guessed what was going to happen. With this movie, the many surprising twists and turns kept it very interesting.

The movie does not show a lot of blood and gore. While there is plenty of teeth gnashing, most of the biting scenes are shown in such fast motion that detail is not visible.

Our teens liked it at least as much as we adults did. If you like suspense and action, this movies provides both in droves.

A Little Bit of History

John H. Clark House

The John H. Clark House, located in Wilson, is currently for sale. This property is zoned to be a residence or business, and is large enough to become a good office space. If you’d like to live near downtown and open your own shop, this spot at 706 E Nash Street could be a good place to start a business.

This L-plan cottage was built between 1890 and 1900. It is located at the corner of Manchester Street SE and E Nash Street, about a half mile from the Amtrak station. The house has a wrap-around porch and a pavilion with an attention-grabbing conical roof. The cottage has porch columns with spindles. The house name comes from John H. Clark, a Wilson city postal carrier in the early 1900s.

The price is $30,000 for 1511 square feet on an 0.4 acre lot. Some work is needed to whip this house into shape. Potential buyers should consider the time, effort, and funds needed to prepare this property for living and working.

The John H. Clark House is adjacent to Wilson’s historic downtown commercial district. Become a part of the downtown business rebirth — or live close to it.

Zoning is ORI (residential or commercial development), and this property may be eligible for Historic Preservation Tax Credits. More information on accessing these tax credits is available at www.preservationofwilson.com. Or, if you like the style of this corner cottage with established trees, contact Kathryn Ferrari Bethune at 252.234.7694 or kfb@preservationofwilson.com.

The Backside

Little Bits

Chuckle of the Issue

The aspiring psychiatrists were attending their first class on emotional issues. “Let’s first establish some parameters,” said the professor to a student, “What is the opposite of joy?”

“Sadness,” said the student.

“And the opposite of depression?” he asked of a second student.

“Elation,” said she.

“And you sir,” he said to another young man, “How about the opposite of woe?”

The young man replied, “Sir, I think that would be giddy-up.”

Quote of the Issue

Thomas Sowell, Economist, born 1930 in Gastonia
“Elections should be held on April 16th — the day after we pay our income taxes. That is one of the few things that might discourage politicians from being big spenders.”
