Zebulon Man Seeks Kidney

When Thomas Allen underwent heart surgery a few years ago, he had no idea that something would go wrong on the operating table. It left him with ongoing kidney issues.

Allen undergoes dialysis three times a week. Doctors have told him that he may be waiting as long as 10 years for a kidney to become available. An option he, and other kidney patients, have is to receive a kidney from a living unrelated donor.

For those willing to help by donating a kidney, more information is online at www.kidney.org. The more Americans who offer to be donors, the faster kidneys may be available for those in need.

To find out more about helping Mr. Allen, contact 919.681.5959. Help this Zebulon resident get back to a normal life and off of dialysis.

Donate Your Gently Used Coats

If you have coats that your children have outgrown or that you no longer wear, why not donate them to help others in your community? Zebulon United Methodist Church and Wakefield Central Baptist Church will take your gently used coats of all sizes as well as scarves, gloves and blankets and other cold weather necessities. These items will be distributed during our outreach ministry Warming the Heart of the Community on Saturday, November 9th, from 11am to 2pm at Zebulon United Methodist Church. Donations can be taken to the ZUMC church office at the corner of N. Church Avenue and Sycamore Street, or to Wakefield Central Baptist Church, Monday through Thursday from 9am to 3pm.

Shades of Grey

Some situations are viewed in black and white; right and wrong. Yet, many people think situations also have a grey area where solutions are not so easily discerned. This is not just about the choices people make, but the thought process they go through to arrive at their decisions.

Submitted for Your Discussion & Consideration

You start planning a birthday party for your daughter. Several of her friends confirm they are coming. Checking with their parents, you pull together a big group of kids for the party.

You prepare the food and cake beforehand, ensuring there is enough food for all the kids whose parents have confirmed. You get a large cake and lots of hamburgers and chips.

The day of the party, only half the children show up. Your daughter still has a good time, and the kids who do come to the party have fun and enjoy the lunch and birthday cake.

After the party, you have quite a few leftovers. You’re upset at the parents who told you that their children were coming, but did not bring them to the party.

Do you think that you would call those who didn’t come? Is it better for your daughter to confront the families, or just let the rudeness go? Do you think that in the future you would invite those children? What do you think you would say to your daughter? Since she had a good day, is it best to say nothing to her about your frustration?

A Little Bit of History

Michael John Smith

(April 30, 1945 – January 28, 1986)

Many of us remember January 28, 1986 well. We watched on TV as the Space Shuttle Challenger destructed after lift-off. Some residents of North Carolina knew that one of their own was lost in that accident.

Mike Smith was the American pilot of the Space Shuttle Challenger. He was born in Beaufort. He died along with the six other crew members, as NASA mission STS-51L was lost. STS-51L was the twenty-fifth flight of the Space Shuttle program, using Space Shuttle Challenger. destroyed a short seventy-three seconds after its launch from Kennedy Space Center.

In addition to the Challenger Memorial in Arlington National Cemetery (see photo), there is also a Memorial in Beaufort. Additionally, the Beaufort Airport is named in memory of Smith: Michael J. Smith Field airfield.

NC Shelters and Rescues Collaborate to Save Animals and Humans from the Undead

By Kay Whatley, Editor and Cat Adopter

Zombies attack humans in movies, TV shows, and Halloween attractions. The idea of brain-thirsty “undead” raises eyebrows, yet even the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) published a 2012 manual on zombie apocalypse survival. Fortunately, NC’s animal groups have a solution to this ongoing fear of zombies: guardian felines.

A video released just in time for Halloween shows kittens attacking zombies, which then run from the fluffy fighters. SPCA of Wake County, headquartered on Pet Finder Lane in Raleigh, released the video October 10, 2013. Details on these special zombie-repellent cats, and a link to the video, are posted on the SPCA Wake web page: www.spcawake.org/zombies. The website states, “These cats & kittens have been trained under a top secret Romanian government project called F.A.S.T. or Feline Alert System Technology.”

The video jokingly shows kittens driving tanks and armed with baseball bats. They take on the zombies and win, protecting their human owners. This tongue-in-cheek video is designed to get across a serious message about pet adoption.

To catch the attention of potential feline adopters, the SPCA Wake video builds on a zombie-repellent cat poster originally created by a Davie County animal shelter. The unique adoption promotion spread like a virus until it turned into a state-wide collaborative effort. More than 30 NC animal shelters and rescues have combined their efforts on the Halloween-themed adoption campaign.

“The SPCA has not participated in something like this before,” Darci VanderSlik of SPCA Wake said. She explained that SPCA Wake is working in conjunction with many separate animal groups, to draw in adopting families for cats and kittens at shelters big and small.

To make the video, SPCA Wake utilized an army of cats and kittens who were waiting for adoption. Volunteers Chris Thomsen and Becky Lembo, along with Pet Finder Lane staffer Vanessa Budnick, put their lives at risk by dressing as zombies and facing the zombie-repellent kittens under Darci’s direction.

These three may not look familiar under all that make-up, but Chris, Becky, and Vanessa also starred in an SPCA Wake video in 2011 set to the tune of ABBA’s song “Take a Chance on Me”. That video was viewed over 97,000 times on YouTube in two years. The Zombie-Repellent Cat video is off to a good start with over 3,800 in its first week.

What drives Darci and the team is not video production credit. They do what they do to ensure pets find homes, no matter where they are located.

“It is not just about the SPCA Wake shelter. The smaller, local shelters have amazing cats, but not the resources to reach out,” says Darci. “With the zombie collaboration project, all the animal groups are sharing resources.”

During the zombie promotion, the website guarantees all cats and kittens. “If a Zombie ever invades your home, we will refund your adoption fee completely. All kittens come with a certificate of authenticity from the Romanian Feline Institute.”

Perhaps for a little extra donation, a kitten might come with its own specially-built tank like the one in the video? Well, probably not, but they sure do look cute driving one.

In addition to stocking up for the apocalypse, or even reading the CDC zombie survival guide, families may also want to consider about adopting a F.A.S.T. cat or kitten to help repel zombie hordes to come. Think about it... before the zombies come for brains!

The Strange-ness

School Start Times can Harm Learning

Research from 1980 forward has shown that teenagers require adequate time for sleep. Learning and thinking improve for teens who get a good night’s sleep. Yet schools still start early in the day, average teens staying up later, and teen learning and behavior are impacted negatively.

The body needs sleep, and teens have been shown to require lots of sleep. When teens do not get enough rest at night, they can end up in a kind of sleepy haze when they are supposed to be learning.

In addition to sleepiness throughout the day, this lack of sleep on school nights often leads to extra sleeping on the weekends to make up the loss.

Multiple studies by researchers, including a Dr. Mary A. Carskadon, have added significantly to what has been known for hundreds of years about circadian rhythm, a 24 hour cycle of biological adjustments affecting sleeping, rising, and other natural reactions. School start times, evaluated in the studies, are considered “environmental constraints”, and were often not on the teens’ natural sleep/wake cycle.

Carmike 10-Wilson Movie Review of the Issue

By Frank Whatley, Sales Manager

In keeping with the theme of Halloween, this issue’s movie review is Carrie — a 2013 remake of the 1976 horror classic.

Usually the review is done by me, my wife, and my two children; but, with the hustle-and-bustle of October deadlines, Spirit week, homecoming, and band concerts, I found myself in the position of having to do the review by myself.

I chose Carrie because I'm a huge Stephen King fan. So, here goes the first review done by... the Wattman.

The movie stays along the same line as the 1976 movie, but with a few twists. Carrie White, a shy teenager (played by Chloë Grace Moretz), is like a fish out of water, raised by Margaret White (played by Julianne Moore — who by the way plays a great crazy lady).

Carrie is raised in a deeply religious home, which makes her an outcast. That, coupled with the fact that Carrie has an amazing telekinetic power makes for some interesting watching.

Updated with all the latest internet and cell phone technologies of today, this Carrie “2.0” was a fun film to watch. Filled with cyber bullying, new special-effects make the film worth watching. I give the film 3 Wattman stars (★★★). It is a great movie to watch for the Halloween season.
